

Search For: Search

Home

About Us

Resource Centre

Herbs FAQs

On

1. What is the difference between TCM and Modern Pharmacology?

TCM is distinct from medicine based on pharmaceutical drugs. Firstly, because it is far more balanced than medicine based on isolated active ingredients and Secondly, because TCM are typically prescribed in combination, the different herbs work together, and they undergo a mutual synergy which increases efficacy and is primarily designed to correct internal imbalances rather than to treat symptoms. TCM is designed to encourage this self-healing process.

2. Who can have treatment?

Chinese medicine can be used by people of all ages or constitutions. You should take your current illness or medication into account before providing treatment. With some provisos which will be determined by your practitioner, children and the elderly can benefit from Chinese medicine.

3. Are herbs safe?

Chinese herbs are very safe. Over centuries TCM practitioners have compiled a pharmacopoeia and placed great emphasis on the protection of the patients.

4. What can Chinese herbs do for me?

Chinese Herbal therapy or herb medicine has three main functions:

- (1). treat the acute diseases and conditions such as killing bacteria or a virus
- (2). heal chronic illness such as gastrointestinal disorder, respiratory disorder etc. by strengthening the body, helping it to recover;
- (3). maintain daily life health by keeping the balance of human body.

In general, herbs can treat a wide variety of diseases and conditions. Compared to modern medicine, herbal medicine is much gentler and safer because it is made of natural herbs and has fewer side effects. Even some side effects that do occur among a few herbs, those are usually mild and can be avoided by combining them with other herbs. For these reasons, people turn to herbal therapy for a people rely on Chinese herb medicine as alternative after chemical medicine

Chronic illness treatment - As we know, many people with chronic illness take conventional drugs daily. Chinese herb medicine is a very good alternative for the conventional western medicine. There are many very effective and prescribed herb formulas for the medications taken for pain syndromes, respiratory disorders, stress related syndromes, respiratory disorders, heart problems, immune system deficiencies, as well as replacements for antibiotics and anti-

Side effect reduction - As mentioned early, Chinese herbs are safer and less likely to reduce the side effects of other medication such as antibiotics, chemotherapy. Antibiotics weaken the immune system. Herbal therapy can strengthen the immune system. When white blood cell count drops, this causes fatigue, lack of energy and appetite. Herbal therapy is successful in relieving the side effects of chemotherapy.

For prevention - People may take Chinese herb medicine for disease prevention. For example, taking herbs to prevent the headache from ever taking a pain reliever after the fact. Herbs are also used to prevent the flu syndrome, among other things. For health maintenance- Herbal therapy for health maintenance. Tonic herbs are used to increase energy and to slow the aging process. Herbs are also used for enhancing sexual energy and for cosmetic purposes. Herbs are also used for severe enough for heavy chemical drugs, symptoms that cannot be diagnosed and illness that are not easy to treat, such as mononucleosis and immune system disorders.

5. Can you tell me the difference between Chinese patent and prescribed herbs?

Chinese Patent herbs are premixed herb combinations according to the traditional Chinese medicine through over 4000 years. They are similar to other forms of pill, tablets, capsule and liquid. The advantages of Chinese patent herbs are that they are easy to take and less expensive. Prescribed herbs are mixed by a herbalist according to an individual's condition.

6. Are the concentrated herbs as the same good as the raw herbs in preparation?

Yes! The concentrated herbs are made from the raw herbs. First of all, the best quality raw herbs are selected. Then these raw herbs are purified. After that they are processed through a fine granular particles. Therefore, they are easy to be dissolved and absorbed.

7. How effective are Chinese herbs?

Chinese herbs are medicines Chinese people have been relied on for their health. Many of them are outdated, lots of them are still proven effective and widely used. They can be used as a complement with modern medicine and may address health concerns modern medicine cannot.

8. How long do I need to take the herbs?

Many herbal formulas or extracts act to adjust or restore the normal physiological function. This is something easily achievable in a few days. So depending on the indications, the herbs may be taken for an extended period of time before their full benefit is experienced. For example, 1-2 weeks for Shou Wu Pian and 2-3 weeks for Pi Fu Bing Xue Du Wan.

9. How long does a bottle of patent Chinese medicine last?

It depends on the condition. When you start, to adequately address your condition, you need to take the full dosage and it normally lasts about 8-10 days. You may lower the dosage if you feel better. Please fill out our contact form or contact us form to enquire.

10. Are your Chinese patent medicines 100% natural?

Yes. Our Chinese patent medicines do not contain any sugar, pharmaceutical preservatives.

11. Can you comment on the side effects of Chinese herbs?

Like any medicine as a whole some Chinese herbs may have undesired side effects, no matter it is an herb or a pharmaceutical. In fact, in China available statistics show that reactions are reported for chemical drugs than Chinese herbs. The Chinese herbs are very best yet safe.

12. Most of the herbal patent I got to take 8, 3 times a day, is this normal?

Yes, it is absolutely right, the reason why you got to take that amount is because it is concentrated from natural herbs without any added artificial ingredients. The diameter is 8mm.

13. Why do people choose traditional Chinese medicine?

Traditional Chinese medicine (TCM) is a holistic healthcare system that aims to treat not just the disease, but the whole person. It has been the main medical system used in China for a long range of conditions. Its long history testifies to the wealth of wisdom, knowledge, and experience. Synthetic drugs are used, and the treatment methods are natural. It aims to treat the disease so that it can heal itself.

People often express concern about certain aspects of Western medicine - that it doesn't address the cause, produces side effects and has a fragmented approach to health care. In TCM, conditions are treated rather than just the symptoms, and stresses the importance of qualified and experienced practitioners, it's unlikely to produce any side effects.

TCM has a good record in treating chronic conditions in situations where prevention would be a cause for worry. It's also shown itself to help some conditions, such as chronic pain, where Western medicine can do little other than treating the symptoms.

TCM sees mental health as no different from physical health, since both are part of the whole. There's no stigma attached to mental health problems, in the way that the emphasis is on restoring mental health, not on treating mental illness.

14. Can you help me understand the names of patent Chinese medicines?

The names of patent Chinese medicines consist of two parts. The last word is the form of the herbs in pills or tablets. The words preceding the last word list the herb (e.g., Dang Gui in Dang Gui Wan) so; look only the first part to identify the form. The same formula may come in various forms like wan or pian. Below

Wan=Pills

Pian=Tablets

Jiao Nang=Capsules

15. Why the box of herbal patent is different as what I have been taking

The manufacture of herbal patent do change the box from time to time for you to have checked the name carefully by using product search functions before you place an order.

16. I have been taking herbal products and wanted to order exactly the same

Of course you can. Please fill in the form below and we will get those products for you.

Herbal Patent Name

Specification

Manufacturer of the Herbal Patent, if any

Where did you get this from

Shops

Your Name

Your email address

Even if you obtained the original Chinese herbal medicine from other sources, failing that, we will recommend similar products. Remember, a lot of products are produced by different manufacturers. The effective ingredients are the same and the price is the same. We supply products only from trusted and well known manufacturers who follow strict regulations, and made of 100% natural plants. Animals and mineral ingredients are not used. Below are the lists of manufacturers.

Tong Ren Tang

Zhangguang 101 Group

999 Pharmaceutical Group

Superdragon

Yeekong

Greatwall

Jiu Zhi Tang

Site Content Copyright © 2007 All Rights Reserved

EShop-Creator™ E-Commerce Software